

The Irish Centre for European Law

is delighted to present

Current Developments in Public Procurement Law

*Friday 14 October 2011, 9.45am – 4pm
Malone House, Barnett Demesne, Belfast BT9 5PB*

Public Procurement has assumed a crucial role in the recession damaged economies in operation in both jurisdictions on this island. It is not surprising therefore that EU law procurement regimes have become the focus of intense attention by state authorities and those funded by them, the private sector, the social economy, academics, and lawyers serving these interests. The stakes are high to get the best from the rules.

The conference will be of particular relevance to practising lawyers and academics with an interest in this fast developing area of law, to public authorities with procurement needs and organisations engaged in procurement processes as well as those concerned with linkages between procurement and other policy areas such as social, environmental and equality where linkages with procurement has the potential to advance their aims. Northern Ireland has been in the front line of many innovative policy approaches and case-law in recent times.

The Centre is delighted to have secured the involvement of top decision makers, leading legal practitioners and well known academic and judicial experts for this Belfast based conference.
